1. A camp 4 km. north of Tokaj, on the road to Bodrogkeresztúr, houses a Russian technical unit. This unit erected a permanent type of bridge during the summer of 1951. The bridge spans the Bodrog river and is near the confluence of the Bodrog and the Tisza.
2. In the same vicinity, where the Bodrog and the Tisza form a peninsula, the Russians are engaged in building an airport. During the latter part of August 1951, 16 freight cars arrived from Diósgyőr and unloaded at the Tokaj station 2 carloads of pipes and 14 carloads of storage tanks. The unloading of 60 carloads of concrete and other building material was subsequently observed. All this material was then taken to the site of the airfield.
